Re: United States v. Veliu, et al.
Case No.: 17-cr-00404 (KAM)

Dear Judge Matsumoto:

We represent defendant Martin Shkreli in the above matter. Mr. Shkreli was initially arraigned on June 29, 2017 and released pursuant to a $200,000 bond signed by two approved suretors and secured by Mr. Shkreli's home. His travel is restricted to New York City and the Southern District of New York. Mr. Shkreli surrendered his passport to U.S. pretrial services. Mr. Shkreli pleaded guilty to a currency reporting violation pursuant to 31 U.S.C. § 5324(b)(1) and is scheduled to be sentenced on February 26, 2018.

Mr. Shkreli respectfully requests permission to travel to Florida on two upcoming occasions: 1) from January 3 to January 8, 2019 to take his son, who is applying to colleges, to visit Florida Gulf Coast University and participate in a soccer camp at the school as a tryout; and 2) from January 23 to January 28, 2019 to take a vacation with his wife. On both occasions, Mr. Shkreli would be staying at his home in Bonita Springs, Florida. If this request is granted, Mr. Shkreli will provide his travel details to his pre-trial services officer in advance and Mr. Shkreli will be reachable on his cellular phone while out of the district.

AUSA Michael Keilty has no objection to Mr. Shkreli's travel requests.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Respectfully submitted,

s/ Brian Waller
